The 2019 UCF Non-Unit Pegasus Professor Award

Purpose: The UCF non-unit Pegasus Professor award recognizes excellence in the three primary areas of academic endeavor: teaching, research and service for non-unit faculty.

Eligibility criteria for a UCF non-unit Pegasus Professor award are as follows:

- Completed five years at the rank of professor at UCF;
- In a non-unit faculty status (including chair/director, assistant/associate director only);
- Achieved excellence in teaching, research, and/or creative activity; and,
- Demonstrated service and scope of national and international impact.

The UCF non-unit Pegasus Professor award recipient's privileges will include:

- Right to be called a UCF Pegasus Professor
- Receive one-time payment of $5,000 from Foundation funds, and a Pegasus statue.

Applications for the UCF non-unit Pegasus Professor award will include:

- Letter of nomination from the applicant, or from a UCF sponsor
- Applicant’s current curriculum vitae
- Endorsement letter from the applicant’s chair/director (as appropriate)
  - Endorsement may include a 250-word statement of support
- Endorsement letter from the dean or vice president
  - Endorsement may include a 250-word statement of support
- Letters of support (no more than three), 500-word letters of support from faculty members, staff members, alumni, professional and community colleagues. These letters are in addition to the endorsements of the applicant’s chair or director, and dean, or vice president mentioned above.

Application packets shall be submitted, as one combined pdf document in the order listed above, electronically to Faculty Excellence, at facultyexcellence@ucf.edu by January 7, 2019.

UCF non-unit Pegasus Professor awards are ultimately determined by the President or designee.